

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 941

Fortunately, Cooper didn't know about it, otherwise today's stage play might not be able to go on.

The theatrical performance had begun. The dean's mother and the student's parent representative would give a speech. This time, Harry was chosen to be the parent representative, and he gave an impromptu speech after going on stage.

In the audience, Sophia and Michael sat together, holding hands quietly. Cooper glared at them, but there was nothing that he could do.

Michael was bold indeed. He knew that Cooper was staring at him but still dared to hold Sophia's hand.

Come fight me if you're so angry, Cooper!

Soon, the stage play began. This time round, the performances were held within the kindergarten. The individual programs were prepared jointly by the parents, students, and faculty of the kindergarten.

This was Carmen's first time going on stage. In the past, she always performed by herself at home with an audience of at most 30 people, including both humans and their pets. This was a big event with hundreds of people in the audience, so the performance was very important. As soon as he learned about it, Michael put aside his filming and came to prepare the show with Carmen. His appearance fee was not cheap, but this time he came for free.

Actually, the kids were charged 15 for photos with him.

This was simply a bargain. His signed photos all fetched a high price on Amazon.

Originally, Ashton was going to act in the play with Carmen, but Ashton also had his own ideas, so he independently prepared a martial arts performance.

When Harry learned about the kindergarten anniversary celebration, he also rushed back with Michael specially to prepare for the show with Hope.

Carmen prepared 'Doctor Invincible vs Pleasant Goat', so their family could actually prepare a play called the 'Calabash Brothers vs Superman', but he didn't expect that Hope would sneer at that idea. He was born with a resting b*tch face which was probably inherited from his grandparents. The moment he was born, he already had a sour face as if he was sneering at the whole world. He even sneered at his father, Harry, only to succumb to the power of Carmen because he couldn't beat her.

Right after the performance started, Cooper began to doze off.

What on earth are these kids doing...

There was not a single satisfactory program, and each one was even more childish than the last. There were some kids who sang and forgot the lyrics. Some stood on the stage for a minute and didn't know what to do, so they simply sat on the ground and cried loudly. Frustrated, Cooper frowned.

Carmen's eyes were staring at the handsome boy. He and his father had prepared a singing and dance performance. They sang the theme song of 'Where Are We Going, Dad?'. Listening to the familiar melody, Carmen was jealous. She subconsciously tightened her grip on Michael's costume.

Michael was wearing the original costume of 'Doctor Invincible'. Even the makeup, as well as the actor, were original. He hugged Carmen and said, "Carmen, you're the best. Relax and just do your best. Next year, I'll bring you along to participate in 'Where Are We Going, Dad?'."

Sophia also stroked the fuzzy and furry Weslie headgear and said, "Come on, my darling baby!"

Cooper also cheered Carmen on. "I will try my best not to drag you down, okay?"

Harry, Sarah, Hale, and Gwen also hurriedly cheered her on. "Come on, Carmen. You're the most beautiful girl in kindergarten. Have more confidence!"

"Good girl. You can do it!"

A raging flame was ignited in Carmen. I must do well this time. I'm the most beautiful girl in kindergarten!!

Soon, Carmen's performance began. First of all, 'Doctor Invincible' appeared on the stage. When he appeared on the stage, he naturally the audience to exclaim as they were amazed by him.

The authentic version of 'Doctor Invincible' and the cute Pleasant Goat were two completely different themes, so everyone wondered how the play would unfold... The parents who dozed off were all awake and stared at them with widened eyes.

'Doctor Invincible' captured Slowy, then Weslie and Sparky rushed to rescue him. When the village chief who was trapped in the iron cage saw Weslie, he shouted, "Weslie, help!"

Weslie said, "Hey, monster, let go of the village chief!"

The audience all kept quiet.

Harry was cringing hard. This first line was already so shockingly embarrassing.

With a serious expression, Michael responded to Weslie, "Kid, I'm not a monster. I'm Doctor Invincible. The aliens on the planet Sikesied have secretly invaded Earth, and Slowy has been possessed by aliens. Now, I'm going to take him away to study ways to eliminate aliens."

Harry sweated profusely. How can Michael say such embarrassing lines so confidently and seriously?

Sophia was also feeling anxious, fearing that Carmen would forget her lines, or that Michael would be too embarrassed and forget his lines.

Cooper, who was in the cage, was also nervous. He was so nervous that his headgear was full of sweat. He was worried for Carmen.

However, fortunately, Carmen did a good job today. However, she was still a kid after all, and she still forgot a few lines in the middle. She should have said, "Come at me, monsters! I will fight for the future of Goat Village!" However, Carmen forgot the lines and just stood on the stage motionlessly for a few seconds. It was absolutely awkward and silent.

Cooper, who was in the cage, was extremely anxious, gesturing desperately, but after all, it was Carmen's first time performing in a stage play. She was so nervous that she forgot all the lines, and looked at Michael with teary eyes.

At the critical moment, 'Doctor Invincible' waved his sleeves and said coldly and unrelentingly, "Weslie, aren't you fighting for the future of Goat Village? What are you doing in a daze? Are you scared?"

After being stupefied for a second, Carmen had a sudden flash of inspiration while she was looking at 'Doctor Invincible' and she improvised, "I-I'm not afraid. I'm just thinking of how to defeat you!"

However, she still sounded fearful. Her acting seemed very real and clever.

The play successfully went on!

Sophia and Cooper breathed a sigh of relief. They were so nervous just now that they forgot to breathe.

Carmen's performance continued, and Cooper was successfully rescued. The stage play then ended, and the actors made the curtain call. With that, the audience burst into applause as the play was really good.

The whole style of the play was different from the others, and they were so good that they seemed like professional actors crushing amateurs.

When the winners were announced, Carmen won first place as expected. Michael took Carmen, who was overjoyed, to the stage to receive the award. He then raised her, who was holding the trophy, up high, making her the most eye-catching kid on the scene.

Looking at Carmen, who had won an award for the first time and was smiling brilliantly, Cooper felt that all the embarrassment today was worthwhile.

When she forgot her lines just now, he was so anxious.

His eyes couldn't help but fall on Michael.

For the first time today, this jerk didn't make him feel upset.

As a father, Michael did a better job than Cooper. Today, he was like a hero who had descended from the sky in the eyes of Carmen.

Nothing made her happier than having a hero as a father.

Michael gave Carmen a happy childhood. He devoted his efforts and energy to her dreams and future, and he worked hard to build a good life for Carmen so that she could grow up happily and maintain her innocence and kindness.

However, Cooper's own daughter did not have such a good father...

Cooper looked at Sophia, who was applauding Michael and Carmen while grinning ear to ear and shedding tears of joy.

After the performance, the family returned home. The moment Carmen got out of the car, she couldn't stay still. While holding her mother with her left hand and her father with her right, she sang, "...Although I am just a goat, the green grass has become more fragrant because of me!"

Michael continued the song, singing, "The sky has become bluer because of me, and the white clouds have become softer because of me!"

Sophia also tried to sing along, "Don't look down on me just because I'm a goat. Goats are smart creatures."

Then, the family of three looked at Cooper in unison, waiting for him to continue the song. Cooper kept quiet because he didn't know how to sing the song.

Carmen said, "I'm angry now. I don't want to play with Grandpa anymore."

Cooper looked at the family of three holding hands and entering the house, feeling very lonely.

After returning home, Cooper secretly asked Carmen again when the time was right, "Darling, between Daddy and Grandpa, who do you like better?"

Carmen was drinking milk. She then wiped her mouth and replied without skipping a beat, "Of course it's Daddy! Isn't it obvious?"

Hearing this, Cooper felt even more lonely.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 942

However, Cooper was not willing to give up and asked Carmen, "Why? Am I not as good as Daddy?"

Carmen spit out her pacifier. She put on a serious expression and gave it a thought, and her voice became solemn as she said, "Grandpa, you are not allowed to ask me such questions in the future. Daddy said that this kind of question is stupid and bad..."

Cooper stuttered, "I..."

Carmen replied, "If your dad and mom were about to die, who would you choose? If Mommy and I fell into the water at the same time and you could only save one of us, who would you save? Daddy said that I should beat up anyone who dares to ask such a question to me when I grow up."

Cooper said, "I..."

Carmen continued, "I'll only answer this once. Daddy and I have known each other for many, many years, but you and I have only known each other for one, two, three, four... Less than thirteen months. So, I prefer Daddy!"

Cooper was speechless.

Carmen replied, "If you ask this question again, I will be angry!"

Cooper sighed, feeling a little sad.

He tried hard to be a good grandfather, but found that the precious Carmen never took his side.

Carmen also knew that she had hurt her grandfather, so she offered her milk to Cooper. "Grandpa, drink this."

Cooper took Carmen's milk bottle, and saw that 'Carmen's milk bottle' was written with Carmen's private stamp on it.

All of the 'royal items' of Carmen would be covered with her stamp. Her self-designed stamp was ugly and awkward-looking, but Michael treated it like treasure and still passed the stamps to the factory. All the customized things used by Carmen would be printed with her seal because she would have a sense of accomplishment that way.

Cooper held Carmen's milk bottle that was still warm. Carmen had always been drinking this type of milk, which was no ordinary milk as it had been specially developed for her.

She was able to grow up healthily thanks to Michael's hard work. He devoted energy and effort to Carmen, and he even set up a special medical team to monitor Carmen's health. The milk she drank and the food she ate every day would all be prepared by expert nutritionists.

It was no wonder that Carmen preferred Michael.

Thinking about it this way, Cooper felt better. He ruffled Carmen's hair and returned the milk bottle to her. Carmen was very clingy today. She invited Cooper to drink her exclusive milk, and took the initiative to sleep with Cooper at night. Cooper was so moved that he almost cried.

The little girl was probably acting this way because Cooper had worked hard for her stage play recently. She was very grateful, so she took the initiative to show her gratitude.

Carmen enthusiastically introduced Cooper to her new items today.

"This is my pillow! This is my bed! These are my slippers! This is my diaper. Don't tell the other children about it! Other children don't need it anymore, but I'm still secretly using it."

Seeing that Carmen was trying hard to show her items to him, he quickly applauded very cooperatively. "Wow, these are nice!"

Although the little girl did not side with him, Cooper was already very happy that she was willing to talk to himself.

Carmen often went to sleep in various rooms, so they made a small movable bed with the theme of 'Balala the Fairies' for her. She would ask someone to push the bed to wherever she went.

After showing off her bed, Carmen said again, "Daddy found someone to write a theme song for me. Do you want to listen to it?"

Since Carmen was going to participate in 'Where Are We Going, Dad?', Cooper had set up a company for her that was responsible for all her acting affairs. Michael had also found a well-known songwriter in the industry to make the theme song for Carmen. They were even going to shoot her MV in spring.

Cooper was overjoyed. "Great. I want to hear it."

Carmen was wearing pajamas with baby bears on them and she began to sing and dance. She also had a vocal teacher dedicated to teaching her in kindergarten, so she sang much better than before. Her voice was sweet and crisp, and she had begun to learn to control her breathing. She sang so beautifully that Cooper became lightheaded. He was overjoyed for the entire night.

It was only later that he learned that he had been tricked by Carmen again. On the night that Carmen made him lightheaded, Michael swaggered into Sophia's room and bedded her all night.

In the mistress' residence, Sophia turned on the night light, and the whole bedroom was enveloped in a romantic atmosphere.

Clothes were strewn across the ground. A woman's underwear and man's boxer briefs were wildly entangled together. Shae sneaked in and took the clothes away, then sent them to the waterhouse. The clothes would be clean for them to wear tomorrow morning.

Sophia was covered in sweat. Leaning on Michael's shoulder, she said shyly, "Didn't you say that you were just coming up here to chat with me?"

Recalling the great s*x he had just now, Michael whispered, "I'm sorry. I couldn't hold back anymore."

Sophia couldn't help but punch his chest with her small fist and pouted. "You even said that your manhood couldn't get into me, and even if it did, you wouldn't move..."

Michael looked at the gorgeous Sophia in his arms and started feeling horny again. He flipped over and lay on top of Sophia.

"I'm sorry... I couldn't hold back again."

The night was long, but in Michael's view, his time with his lover would always be short.

Tomorrow morning, he would leave again. This time round, they would not be able to see each other for another month. He wanted to give her all the love and longing he had accumulated during this month in one night.

Although he knew it was not easy, Michael tried hard to leave behind his seed in Sophia. He hoped that it would take shape, take root and sprout. He hoped that Sophia would give birth to another child so that he would have another precious and loving baby.

However, he also knew how difficult this was. Sophia had not taken care of her health ever since she was a child, and she had exhausted all her strength to give birth to Carmen. Previously, she was captured by Quinton. She had to escape while pregnant with Carmen, which had also ruined her health. Now, her body was beginning to get better, but the doctor had said that her chance of having a baby again was very small.

It's fine if that's the case... God already gave Carmen to me, and she's already the greatest gift. I can't be greedy.

Sometimes, he felt a little empty, and that Carmen was very lonely without a sibling... Still, they could just get more pets!

The more pets they got, the better.

In the middle of the night, Sophia got up to drink some water then came back, lying in Michael's arms while preparing to have the next round of sex.

Michael's hands had been stroking Sophia's flat stomach. Her stomach felt cold to touch, so Michael warmed her belly with his big palm, hoping that this would drive away the coldness.

Sophia let out a contented sigh and suddenly asked, "If we have a second child in the future, do you think it would be boy or a girl?"

Before Michael could speak, Sophia already replied, "I hope that it's a daughter. Look at Carmen, she's great! Daughters are great. They smell good, and they're obedient. Bubbles and Snowball are also girls, and they're very obedient. Look at Judge... I wouldn't want to have a son as naughty as Judge in the future."

Speaking of sons, Michael thought of Nate. Unfortunately, it was also his first time being a father at that time. He was very nervous and bad at parenting, thus he had raised Nate into a person with a cold attitude. Now, he regretted it very much.

He was grown up now and had gradually become sensible. Plus, he had a younger sister, and he had gradually realized that Michael had tried hard to be a good father. However, he was still very cold.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 943

After learning from his experience of raising Nate, he worked extra hard to raise Carmen. He took care of everything by himself and no longer made other people do the work. He changed Carmen's diapers, and he even cleaned her after she peed and pooped. He formulated milk powder for her under the guidance of an expert and when she was ill, he guarded her all day and night.

"...She was very sick and in a lot of pain. The doctor even advised me to euthanize her and let her go peacefully, but Carmen was still trying very hard to continue breathing. Her heart was beating hard and I knew that she wanted to live. She was always so strong and optimistic. No matter how bad the situation was, she tried her best to live on. I stayed next to her in the hospital and watched them inject things into Carmen's thin arms again and again. She relied on a ventilator to survive. Occasionally, she would open her eyes and look at me. As soon as I stretched out my hand, her little hand would grab my fingers hard. Although she was still ignorant and didn't know who I was, she knew that I hadn't given up on her. She was trying hard to live for me. Then, she overcame all difficulties and survived healthily."

When Sophia heard Michael talk about this, she couldn't help but cry.

That scene felt familiar to her.

Back then when she was in a coma, she seemed to have heard similar words. The doctors were saying that she could not survive and would die in endless pain. They said that it would be better to euthanize her and let her pass away peacefully.

However, a pair of warm and strong hands held her all the time, desperately trying to warm her. Although she was in a lot of pain and she wanted to give up so that she could be free, the warmth of those big hands had given her courage. She was in a lot of pain, but she still wanted to live. She wanted to live no matter how small the chance was!

It was simply a gift from heaven that she could survive and even reunite with Carmen and her dad!

"You made me cry..." Sophia sobbed.

Michael kissed her on the forehead and whispered in her ear, "Will you promise me one thing? You and Carmen are everything to me. Don't leave me, okay...?"

He tasted his own salty tears, and he heard Sophia's soft voice answering, "Okay..."

Early in the morning the next day, Cooper learned that Michael had slept in Sophia's building all night. His face flushed red with rage, and he kept glaring at Michael during breakfast. Michael didn't back down either.

Sophia knew that the two of them were at odds with each other, so she intervened and said, "Okay, stop staring at each other. If you guys keep glaring, you might become cross-eyed soon."

It was only then did Michael and Cooper finally stop.

Although Cooper was angry that Michael had taken away his baby girl, as a father, he was still grateful to him. They had both watched their daughter dying in front of them before. Thinking about it this way, he had a better understanding of Michael.

Still, they were still on opposite sides because Michael wanted to snatch away Cooper's baby girl. This was simply unforgivable!

Bubbles came over and the huge dog looked at Michael pitifully, as if he knew that Michael was going to leave. Michael patted its head and said, "Dad is going out to make a lot of money. Take care of our home and don't destroy it."

Bubbles stuck out her tongue, looking very cute.

Carmen immediately skipped over and said, "I also want you to ruffle my hair!"

Michael freed up a hand to ruffle Carmen's hair and said to Sophia, "Look, our pets are also very cute. When Carmen enters elementary school, let's get a few more pets."

Sophia hugged Sunset. The beautiful Ragdoll cat was full of aristocratic temperament.

She finally knew why she had decided to raise so many cats and dogs—it was because she couldn't have children at that time.

It was said that in many feudal families in Cethos, women who could not give birth to children, especially those who could not give birth to sons, had to be hung up and beaten. In comparison, Michael truly treated her well. She had not been able to have children after so many years of marriage, but he didn't hang her up and beat her. He even raised so many pets with her.

The family was enjoying themselves. Cooper, who was left out, couldn't stand it anymore. After eating, he changed into his clothes and went out. His baby girl was about to be snatched away, so he felt an even more urgent need to find his son.

Before leaving, he fed his tortoise and said to Dimon, "Send him off in a while. Keep an eye on him."

When he said this, his fierce eyes were staring at Michael.

Dimon was speechless.

I'm just sending Michael to the airport. Why does it sound like Michael is going to be killed? Geez.

After eating breakfast, Linus dropped Carmen off at the kindergarten.

“Uncle Linus, please take good care of Carmen.” Sophia said goodbye to Linus at the door. Meanwhile, without Cooper around, Michael took it one step further and openly placed his arm around Sophia as her lover.

Linus glanced at them and said, “Yeah.”

Carmen went out wearing new clothes. She was wearing a fuschia hat with two pointy cat ears, and she was in a pink outfit. Her hands, which were in her little gloves, waved. “Daddy, you can be rest assured and go off now. Make sure you earn money to buy me a floral dress!”

After leaving the house, Linus glanced at Messenger calmly and realized that he had a new message.

Alice texted, ‘Everything is ready.’

This time round, Michael didn’t let Sophia send him off. The journey would take two or three hours, and he couldn’t bear letting her feel tired.

Michael and Harry returned to the crew together. So far, they had been on leave for five days already. They were the main male leads so if they didn’t come back, the crew would be in big trouble.

As soon as Michael came back, he saw an extra person in the crew. She was an extremely beautiful Western woman with dazzling blond hair who stood out in the crew.

This time round, the crew of ‘The Winter Breakthrough’ hired a well-known foreign photography team, and the woman was a well-known photographer.

When Michael came, the woman had already become acquainted with Celine and was teaching her English.

“Hello, Mr. Murray. I have been a fan of yours for many years. Please call me Alice.”

The Western women took the initiative to talk to Michael. She had long legs and a very tall figure. Even if she was wearing thick winter clothes, she still couldn’t hide her beautiful curves, and she was very proud of her height of 1.7-meter. When she looked up at him, there was just the right amount of worship and pleasant surprise in her eyes. She didn't look too cold nor overly fanatical.

As soon as Michael lowered his head, he saw her work tag.

She was Alice Michel, an assistant photographer.

Michel...

Michael frowned when he saw this surname. Still, he shook hands with Alice and said, "Nice to meet you. Thank you for your hard work."

Alice smiled. She had very sharp facial features, and her eyes were as blue and as beautiful as the deep sea. She said, "It is an honor for me to join this team. I'd appreciate your kind guidance."

She was not very fluent in Cethosian, but even her accent sounded elegant, just like herself.

The two talked briefly before they separated.

After Michael and Harry returned, they started shooting on a tight schedule.

From then onward, there was an extra employee in the crew—Alice. She had a good personality, and on top of that, she was very gentle and good-looking. Thus, she was the most liked person in the crew second only to Cereberus.

Michael worked overtime to finish his work faster, but he didn't expect that disaster would soon befall him.

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 944

The mountain was like a wilderness of zombie-white and the crew could barely see anything other than the blanket of snow, which was so thick that it was extremely arduous for them to trudge through it. Even their cars could easily get stuck in the snow. Carrying the hefty shooting equipment alone drained a lot of time and energy from the staff, let alone carrying the food.

Meanwhile, the Cereberus had become the gems among the filming crew as they had run back and forth several times a day to bring snacks and food for the staff. Besides being dedicated, they never slumbered and were always energetic. They would even send garbage down the mountain after every meal to maintain the cleanliness of the filming spot.

On the other hand, Celine too followed Judge around everyday to serve meals for the staff since she was free and loved wandering around.

Ever since she lost her memory, her old-self as the belle in military special forces had completely vanished. Instead, she had become a totally different person and was like a Husky in human form. In fact, she was even more playful than a Husky.

Running back and forth with Celine all day, Justin barely had time to do other things. He had to look after Celine as if he was a babysitter to prevent her from getting into trouble.

She was indeed like a child who was just past infancy and was now an energetic toddler who was inquisitive and eager to explore the world. Someone had to attend to her all the time to prevent her from getting injured given how vigorous she was.

“Hey, you’re so playful that even the Husky is tired running around with you.”

Michael gently pinched her cheeks as he lectured her. When they were young, it was Celine who took care of him; now, it was his turn to look after her.

Smiling innocently, she was like a carefree, adorable child. At the same time, Michael was overwhelmed with mixed emotions looking at her features that resembled his.

The girl in the past, who put her boss’ dog up to eating sh*t and fought with the director’s wife, no longer existed, and had now become a silly girl. Though she would not stir up trouble anymore, Michael wasn’t sure if this was considered something fortunate for her.

Today, Judge was led away by Celine to run all around the mountain. While Celine was still full of energy when they came back, Judge was already exhausted.

Seeing that, Justin quickly pulled Michael's hand away from her face and said, "She is just a naive kid."

Michael was rendered speechless. He had never seen a forty-year-old kid.

He turned around and looked at Judge, who was lying on the ground drained. Never did he imagine that even Judge's energy could be depleted someday.

These days, Judge had been following the filming crew up the mountain early in the morning and going home late at night. Being busier than a farmer, the hardworking dog had been bringing snacks for them, serving meals and cleaning garbage just for the sake of a small amount of tip. On top of that, he had to get down to run around with Celine—no wonder his energy ran out.

Michael took out a hundred from his pocket and gave it to Judge. Patting his head, Michael cooed him in a gentle voice that was rare, "There, there. Take this money and buy me a coffee. The shooting is going to end soon, and we can go home for the new year as soon as it ends."

Judge howled wearily.

Though he was exhausted after running around with Celine, he still pulled himself together for the sake of the money. Dragging the little trolley, Judge took the shopping list and went down the mountain with his two pups with Celine and Justin behind them. Seeing the five gradually vanishing from his sight, Michael turned around and pulled out his phone to check in on Sophia.

"Wow, your phone is the latest model from Michel Group's mobile phone brand!" Standing behind him, Alice exclaimed in amazement just as he took out the phone.

Michael looked down at his phone. It was royal-black in color and had a smooth screen and sleek design. In addition, its other functions and features included high tolerance to heat, long battery life, and solar-powered battery. Produced with military-grade technology, it was also bulletproof.

"Mm-hmm, it is one of Michel Group's products," he answered.

The electronics manufacturing business of Michel Group positioned themselves as providers of high-end, superior products. The price of the phone which Michael was holding was around 60,000, and it was the latest model that had yet to be launched in the market. It was not commonly seen given its extraordinarily high price.

“Seems like this model has not been launched in the market yet. Can I have a look at it?” Alice’s eyes were filled with admiration.

Frowning, Michael courteously turned down her request. “There’s nothing special about it besides more powerful functions and a slimmer design.”

Previously, Carmen was upset because Cooper’s phone did not have a beauty mode in its camera function, thus she had refused to take pictures using his phone. Hence, Cooper immediately commanded the research and development department to add the beauty mode in their latest model. The beauty mode was supported by the latest technology and had a powerful function of intelligent face recognition to automatically apply the beauty effects on the user’s face.

Sitting down beside Michael, Alice glanced at his phone and could immediately identify its features. “I can see that the camera is different and I’m guessing that they must have upgraded the camera function. I’ve heard that this model now has a beauty mode. Is that true?”

Michael replied, “Yeah, the beauty mode is pretty good.”

Sophia had given him two of the phones and he had been using this one ever since he came to the mountain. It was undeniable that the phones produced by Michel’s Group were indeed powerful and its bulletproof function was not merely a marketing gimmick.

The lock screen of his phone was the Cereberus while his wallpaper was a picture of Sophia and Carmen. Sitting beside him, Alice noticed his lock screen. Michael quickly put away his phone so that she would not see his wallpaper.

“Are all three of the Huskies yours?” Alice asked again.

Focusing on the script, Michael answered shortly, “Yes.”

Alice reminded him, “Though they are sled dogs, it normally takes seven to eight of them to pull a sleigh. It’s too tiring for them to pull things around like this. You have to be careful.”

Michael remained silent, but he had acknowledged her words.

He felt sorry for Judge too seeing the silly dog diligently transporting food for the staff just for the sake of a little tip. Well, the shooting is going to end soon and they just have to hang in there for a few more days. I'll reward them with more good food once we are back in Bayside City.

Michael was taking a chance since Sophia would not know about it, and neither would Harry nor Justin tell her. Only the silly dogs themselves would know how they had been ordered around, but little did Michael know what was going on in Bayside City...

"Come on, Sophia! Let's go visit the filming crew! Come on..."

It was early in the morning and the sky was still dark. With a sleepy face, Sophia looked out the window and saw Stanley and Sean standing outside the house waving at her.

After waiting for some time, Stanley waved his hands at the window again. "Come on, Sophia! Big Brother Stanley has bought a new plane. Let's take the plane and go visit the filming crew!"

It sounds like a good idea to visit the filming crew.

At the moment, Linus had gone overseas for an important meeting, Carmen was with the Fletchers and Cooper was busy finding his son. And so, Sophia brought Snowball along and slipped out of the house to visit the crew with Stanley and Sean.

It was yet another month since she had met Michael. Sophia was excited to see him, so she did not inform him beforehand about her visit.

She wanted to give him a huge surprise!

My Dreamy Old Husband Chapter 945

Stanley and Sean pitched in and bought a private plane. Joyfully, Sophia hopped onto the plane and brought Snowball with her to visit the crew. At the same time, a few bodyguards tagged along knowing that she was going on a jaunt.

Soon, they arrived at the city in which Michael was shooting. After switching from a four-wheel drive to a bus and lastly, to a donkey cart, they finally reached town. Upon settling down in a hotel, Sophia left for the shooting scene with Stanley and the others. She was going to give Michael a huge surprise!

The surrounding environment was pristine and there were very few residents staying around the area. The weather was fair as the group of people walked through the snowy-white pastures. Wearing a thick coat and goggles, Sophia walked excitedly at the front of the group.

Suddenly, a ringing sound emerged from the front. After passing over a steep hill, they saw a team of people in the distance. It was a man and a woman with three Huskies. Both the man and the woman were wearing green coats while the Huskies were dressed in tattered clothes and looked scrawny.

The three dogs were pulling a little trolley which had several big bags of goods on it.

Obviously, the Huskies were extremely exhausted with their heads dropping as they were dozing off. Nevertheless, they were still pulling the trolley diligently, which made them look pitiful.

Seeing that, Stanley started to protest. "This is too much! How would three Huskies be able to pull so much stuff? Though Huskies are sled dogs, they shouldn't treat them like this. I'm going to teach them a lesson."

Sophia too thought their masters went over the line. How could they let the three small Huskies pull so many things? This was animal abuse!

Sophia dressed up Snowball with a pink vest so that her furry, white body was distinguishable from the blankets of snow. All of a sudden, Snowball dashed forward. Sophia could only watch as the furball in pink sprinted toward the three Huskies.

Woof! Woof!

Seeing Snowball, the Huskies became extremely excited. Meanwhile, the man and the woman turned around and looked in the direction of Sophia and the others.

Upon seeing each other face to face...

"It's you!"

Instantly, Stanley recognized the two people standing in front of him. They were none other than Celine and Justin!

The coats that they were wearing must have been taken from the filming crew as the coats looked shabby. At first, Stanley even thought they were locals.

He stared at the three Huskies in shock. The leading dog was none other than his beloved Judge, who had lost so much weight that even he himself could barely recognize him.

Howling, Judge immediately ran toward Stanley as soon as he saw him. He was like a child who had been abducted for child labor, and now his father had finally come to his rescue.

"Stan? Sophia..."

Justin and Celine were stunned seeing the group of people who came from nowhere.

Looking at the heaps of goods in the trolley, Stanley glanced toward the poorly-dressed Cereberus and their harnesses, and then toward Justin and Celine who were feeling guilty. His blood boiled upon realizing what was going on.

"Y-You b*stards!"

On the other hand, it was time for lunch but the meals had not arrived yet. The crews were wondering if something had happened on the way. There was once where Judge accidentally overturned the trolley, spilled the snacks halfway, and came back empty-handed. Later, Celine had requested to be in-charge of transporting the crew's meals and snacks. Each time, Justin and her would follow Judge to run the errands, so there shouldn't be any accidents by rights.

Finally, the familiar ringing sound of the trolley's bells could be heard. Overjoyed, the staff who were idle at the moment quickly walked out awaiting their meals and snacks. However, to their surprise, they saw a big group of people approaching from the other end of the snowfield.

Walking in front was Justin and Celine. With their heads down, they silently pulled the trolley in which the three exhausted Huskies were sitting.

Besides, there were a few other men behind them who were carrying the food that was supposed to be transported by Judge and his pups.

Something must have happened!

Michael looked toward the direction of Celine as she lifted her head and looked at him, who seemed flustered and was pouting.

Then, he saw Stanley and Sean walking in the troop behind. Besides, there was a Samoyed in a pink vest and a woman who was wearing a pink coat and goggles.

He shuddered upon seeing the woman. Scared stiff, Michael knew that he was in trouble.

The other crews who were excitedly awaiting their meals were startled by the episode too. Standing still, no one dared to utter a word as they were anticipating what was going to happen next.

The woman in pink coat walked up to a spot not far away from Michael and stopped, thereafter she chucked the bags of food onto the ground. Nevertheless, nobody dared to step forward and collect the food as they looked back and forth between Michael and the woman in the pink coat.

Finally, the woman took off her goggles and showed her pair of blue eyes. Staring fiercely at Michael, she snarled, "Michael, you'd better explain yourself! What's going on?!"

They were in great trouble!

Even the missus was here now!

The crew had expected this to probably happen someday, but they never thought that it would happen so soon.

Immediately, everyone excused themselves from the scene, leaving Michael alone to deal with the furious dog owner, Sophia.

Michael too was scared out of his wits, and he knew it would be impossible to make up an excuse.

Today, Celine had hauled Judge around the mountain to play with her since early morning. While Celine was still full of beans, Judge was already fatigued after that. Celine alone had drained the Cereberus of energy and they were even dozing off at noon. Nevertheless, the crew were still waiting for the Huskies to fetch their meals, so Michael gave Judge a hundred, thereafter the dog got up tiredly and went down the mountain to pick up lunch.

Initially, Michael was thinking to order the Huskies about for one last time today, thereafter he would reward them splendidly before sending them back to celebrate the new year in Bayside City. However...

“My dear, I was wrong! I’m sorry!”

Michael immediately wimped out and confessed in a sincere manner. “It’s all my fault. I promise it won’t happen again. Please forgive me, will you?”

Stanley almost teared up cuddling his beloved Judge, who was worn out.

Back in Bayside City, Judge had always been chubby and fluffy as he fed on top-quality dog food, stayed in the finest kennel, and even wore a branded collar. However, he had lost so much weight after living with the filming crew for just a few days.

Looking at Judge’s shabby clothes, skinny legs and exhausted face, Stanley did not even dare to directly confront Michael. Nevertheless, Sophia was not afraid to do so.

Sophia nearly blew her top and could hardly contain her anger as she was about to start fighting with Michael despite the fact that there were so many people watching.

Seeing such a situation, Harry quickly distributed the meals to the staff and dispersed them for lunch. After all, it was not appropriate to meddle in others’ private affairs. Everyone quickly took their food and walked away. Nonetheless, Sophia’s hoarse roar could still be heard from afar.

“Michael Fletcher, what did you promise me when I handed the dogs over to you? You said you would take good care of my dogs! Is this how you take care of them?!”

“You’re not even looking after them at all! If you’re unhappy, you can send them back to me! I have been putting up with you for a long time! You used my cat as your mouse pad. You made the Persian cat that I gave you catch spiders, cockroaches, and even wild rats from the drains! You even used my dog to wipe your feet! Do you really think he is your mat?!”

Sophia burst into tears as she got even more frustrated the more she thought about it. All the grievances that she had harbored for a long time finally exploded today.

She was like a farmer who was carefully growing pots of plants and had been taking care of them diligently by giving them fertilizers, getting rid of pests and controlling the amount of light and water they got. Finally, the flowers bloomed and she was overjoyed admiring the beautiful flowers. However, Michael took her pots of plants as ashtrays and disposed of his cigarette butts in them!
